MOVEMENT.

[Special.]—From interviews

spectable republican voters and newspapers that supported Garfield reject Blaine.

OPINIONS OF PROMINENT MEN.

New York, June 11.—[Special.]—The Tribune's Washington: Congressman Hiscock said: "If the making of the ticket had been left to sworn referees, and if they had searched the country over they could not have pitched upon any other two men who would have been so strong as Blaine and Logan."

"The ticket is invincible," Judge Poland tersely put it. "As the nominee of the party Blaine will secure the usual number of votes in Vermont, which is 'all there are.'"

Colonel George Bliss of New York remarked: "The Times will exert no great influence. It has been finding fault with everything and everybody for some time, and has become a common scold."

THE CALIFORNIA DELEGATION.

Portland, June 11.—The California delegation has arrived. The excursion party is in the harbor this afternoon. There will be a reception in the city hall this evening.

Portland, June 11.—There was an immense audience at the city hall to welcome the California delegation. Charles F. Libby presided. Judge Schnell and Judge Bush of California made speeches, which were received with much applause. John R. Rand of Nevada followed. Every allusion to Blaine was received with an enthusiastic demonstration. Captain James A. Palmer of Nevada announced himself as a cowboy of Nevada, which statement was received with a storm of plaudits. He asserted they would not have dared to go back if they had flinched from their duty to Blaine, for they hang folks in Nevada for that sort of thing. He paid an earnest tribute to Logan, and closed by alluding to a wealthy leader of Nevada who wished to go to Chicago to vote for Arthur, saying he would pay all their expenses, but they told him to stay at home.

State Conventions.

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Stockton, June 11.—The democratic state convention resumed its session at 9 o'clock this morning. The report of the committee on permanent organization and rules recommended Stephen M. White as permanent chairman; adopted.

A resolution was adopted that all delegates elected be pledged to attend the national convention at Chicago.

A resolution thanking Sumner for his service in congress was adopted unanimously.

The chairman of the committee on resolutions submitted the report adopted by the committee. They reaffirm the principles of the San Jose convention, endorse the calling of the extra session by Governor Stoneman, charge the republicans with having frustrated anti-monopoly legislation, declare it the duty of the democratic party to expel its pledge-breakers; denounce by name Railroad Commissioners Carpenter and Humphreys, the attorney-general and recreant senators and assemblymen; discountenance the tax compromises, reaffirm the Sunday law plank of the San Jose platform, invoke congress to legislate against interference by federal courts in state affairs, oppose railroad interference in politics, discountenance the high tariff and the holding of large tracts of land by non-resident aliens, demand the restoration of forfeited land grants, that a plank be introduced in the democratic national platform opposing the national bank system, condemn the practice of county committees in choosing delegates to the convention, demand a reduction of railroad transportation rates, favor the proposed constitutional amendment providing for the purchase of text books by the state, declare Tilden and Hendricks the first choice of the California democracy, and Thurman its second, repudiate the presidential aspirations of Stephen J. Field, and pledge the delegates to the national convention to vote against him.

Chase of San Diego moved to amend the resolution regarding the holding of lands by aliens, so as to read that persons who have declared their intention of becoming citizens may hold land. The amendment was adopted.

The platform as adopted affirms the devotion of the democratic party to the principles laid down in the national democratic platforms of 1876 and 1880, demands the nomination of Tilden and Hendricks and the removal of all restrictions on silver coinage, opposes the acquisition of large tracts of public lands by aliens, and demands absolute exclusion of Chinese.

Canfield of Santa Barbara moved that the portion of the platform relating to Judge Field be stricken out.

Frank G. Newlands of San Francisco seconded the motion, and made a speech defending Field.

When Newlands finished Senator Reddy moved to take a recess, saying: "The doctrine the gentleman is announcing is too much for a democrat with an empty stomach. The gentleman is in the wrong convention. I don't know whether the gentleman is a democrat or not, but at any rate I want time to digest what he has said."

The motion was adopted, and the convention took a recess until 2 o'clock.

Following are the delegates elected to the national convention in the remaining four districts: First District, Dennis Spencer and H. C. Wilson, pledged for Tilden and to oppose Field; second district, J. W. Breckenridge and Niles Searles, pledged for Tilden and Thurman, and to oppose Field; fifth district, Maurice Schmidt and Lawrence Archer, pledged for Tilden and to oppose Field; sixth district, D. J. Reese and A. B. Butler, instructed for Tilden and Thurman; a resolution instructing them not to vote for Field under any circumstances was defeated.

For congressmen the first district nominated Barclay Henley, the second J. B. Budd, the fifth F. J. Sullivan of San Francisco, and the sixth R. F. Del Valle.

TEXAS DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Galveston, June 11.—News Fort Worth special: The democratic state convention to elect delegates to the national convention at Chicago, and to select presidential electors, convened to-day at noon. Gen. Chilbourne, in calling the convention to order, touching the issues of the day, said: "Tariff for revenue only is the democratic slogan. Men are secondary issues." This sentiment was greeted with vociferous applause, and shouts of "Tilden!" After temporary organization and the appointment of various committees, the convention took a recess.

The convention at 4 o'clock reassembled. Ex-Lieutenant Governor J. D. Sayers was made permanent chairman. The committee on credentials reported. Ex-Governor Richard Hubbard and others addressed the convention. The speakers all declared the tariff issue to be the great central figure in the coming contest. Hubbard said he had been informed the party would lose nothing if Tilden refused the nomination, as many others were worthy of the great honor. Adjourned till 9:30 P. M.

MISSISSIPPI DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Jackson, Miss., June 11.—The democratic state convention commenced to-day, H. M. Street presiding. Delegates are present from all but four counties. Delegates at large to Chicago: C. E. Hooker, Dr. W. L. Kiernan and Colonel R. O. Reynolds.

The committee on resolutions submitted the following report:

The democratic party of the state of Mississippi, in convention assembled, appealing with exultant satisfaction to its past record as an index to its future action, hereby declares its loyalty to the democratic party of the union, and its determination to support the declaration of principles that shall be enunciated at Chicago and the nominees who may be selected to bear its banner in the approaching contest.

Resolved, That in accordance with the precedents of the democratic party of Mississippi, we send our delegates to the national convention uninstructed, relying on said delegates to act for the best interests of the party and the country.

The following amendment to the resolution was offered.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that no men are more worthy of the nomination for president and vice president than Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendricks.

The resolutions were adopted as amended.

THE MORMONS REPUDIATED.

Salt Lake, June 11.—At the democratic territorial convention yesterday, it was affirmed that the democracy and Mormonism are irreconcilable; that John T. Caine, the Mormon delegate to congress, is not a democrat, nor can any Mormon be a democrat; that in the judgment of the convention it was a serious mistake on the part of democrats in congress in naming said Caine as a member of the democratic congressional committee.

Crop Returns.

Indianapolis, June 11.—The Indiana Farmer has crop reports from all the counties of this state. With few exceptions the reports state that May was favorable for wheat, oats and grass, but too low and wet for early corn planting. The condition of wheat in Indiana is 85, against 68 the same time last year; Illinois 81, against 57; Ohio 82, against 62 last year. These figures indicate that the Indiana crop will be 33,400,000 bushels; Illinois, 31,200,000; Ohio, 32,000,000. Corn is more promising than at the same date last year. The area planted shows a decrease of 3 per cent. in Indiana, 3 in Illinois, and 4 in Ohio; but the condition more than compensates last year's excess. Oats in the three states show 14 per cent. better condition than last year, and hay 3 per cent. better.

The Army of the Potomac.

New York, June 11.—The public reception to the society of the army of the Potomac to-night, in the Brooklyn academy of music, was a great affair. General Newton opened the ceremonies, and introduced Mayor Low, who delivered an address of welcome. Horace Porter delivered the oration. He paid a glowing tribute to the achievements of the army, and spoke earnestly of General Grant's great services to the country. A poem was read by John Savage. General Grant was elected president of the society. The general thanked the society for the honor. The next annual meeting will be held at Baltimore.

Sequel to a Sad Story.

New York, June 11.—[Special.]—Thomas Parks and Miss Grace Ripley were married here recently. Two years ago Mrs. Thomas Parks of Herkimer, because of her jealousy over her husband's alleged intimacy with Miss Ripley, deliberately shot her two children, and then ended her own life. Parks and Miss Ripley were obliged to leave town because of the indignation of the community. He was at the time a prominent business man in Herkimer.

Will Raise the Price.

New York, June 11.—[Special.]—It is currently reported that the morning papers which lowered their prices a few months since will advance them again after the presidential election; the Herald and the World to three cents, and the Times to three. The Tribune will no change. The reduction is said to have been found totally unremunerative.

A PAYING TELLER'S CRIME.

Cleveland, June 11.—Isaac A. Stanley, paying teller of the National bank of Commerce, was jailed this evening, for embezzling $106,000 from the bank. The shortage was discovered yesterday afternoon, when Cashier Garretson counted the reserve fund, kept in a special apartment of the vault, the combination of which is known only to Garretson and Stanley. When asked to explain the shortage, Stanley confessed that a year ago he was troubled about a debt of $800 on his house, and thought he could take that sum from the reserve fund without harm to anyone; invest in grain, realize a profit, pay off the mortgage on his place and return the money, but the investment was unfortunate, and to cover the loss he took more, and so on until he had taken a clean $106,000. The directors of the bank met last evening, and after consultation held Stanley as a prisoner at the hotel in the custody of a detective. To-day more conferences were held, resulting in the arrest of Stanley, who has assigned his property and some speculative deals. The bank announces in a card that it will realize a part of the loss from this, and will not be affected by the defalcation.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Kansas City, June 11.—The disappearance of Alfred Sheldon of Kansas City, agent of the Blue Springs (Mo.) Milling Company, noted some weeks ago, becomes more mysterious. Sheldon is an Englishman of considerable property, and when he disappeared there were rumors of shortage in his accounts. Mrs. Sheldon has since received two letters in a hand which she recognizes as her husband's, one dated Kansas City, the other Blue Springs, in which Sheldon says he is held in durance by command of members of the milling company, who claim a shortage and demand a settlement. Friends of Sheldon in England referred the matter to the British government, and the authorities instructed the English consul at New York to investigate the matter. Letters from the consul have been received here by police officers.

T. W. Shepard, superintendent of the Jewish cemetery, assaulted on April 26 by three men, and whose subsequent mysterious disappearance has created much comment, has been discovered in Oakland, California. He was staying at a hotel with his wife, they being registered as "T. O. Smith and wife." Shepard has been placed under arrest, to make sure of his appearance at the approaching trial in connection with the suicide of "Shorty" Simpson. The case is involved in a deep mystery.

A Peculiar Verdict.

In the case of Mrs. Louisa Sack, supposed to have committed suicide by taking strychnine at Oakland on Saturday night, the coroner's jury last night returned this peculiar verdict: "We are unable to find when or where the poison was purchased, or how it was administered; but if taken by her own hand, we are of the opinion that she was driven to it by the extreme cruelty of her husband."

Suit against an Actor.

Suit was brought yesterday in the superior court of this city against N. C. Goodwin, a well known actor, by L. M. Bayless, manager of the Gaiety theater at Sydney, Australia, for a breach of contract made in New York, to play forty weeks in the Australian colonies. Damages are laid at $30,000.

MEETING OF CELEBRATION COMMITTEE.

The executive committee on the forthcoming Fourth of July celebration met at the firemen's hall last evening, and transacted important business.

T. J. Matlock from the committee on grounds, submitted a contract between the executive committee and W. Hoffman, engaging the Willamette park for the occasion, and the same was approved and signed.

The committee on programme reported progress, and the secretary was instructed to have posters printed and circulated immediately.

T. J. Matlock marshal of the day, reported the appointment of ex-Chief Engineer Jas. H. Sprague as deputy, to have charge of the fire department division, and of M. Stoker as captain of the mounted company of Ku-Ki Kalico Badads. It was decided that this company parade also in the evening by torchlight. This parade will precede the display of fireworks, and will doubtless be an attractive feature of the celebration.

The committee on transportation reported the following reduced rates had been secured on the various lines of transportation:

C. R. & N. Co.—Round trip tickets reduced to one and one fifth fare from all points; good from July 3 to July 5, inclusive.

TRAINING THE DANCERS.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The Senate Wrangles Over Frelinghuysen's Nicaragua Scheme,

BUT FINALLY ADJOURNS WITHOUT ACTION.

The House Takes a Recess Until To-day—Randall's Resolution to Prevent Political Assessments Adopted in Committee—Notes.

Frelinghuysen's Nicaragua Scheme.

Washington, June 11.—The concessions from Nicaragua which Secretary Frelinghuysen wishes to secure for this government are understood to be those made three or four years ago for an inter-oceanic canal, a project in which General Grant, Governor Morgan, S. M. Barlow, Captain Phelps and others in this country, together with some people of influence in Nicaragua were interested. The term within which the work was to be begun nearly elapsed, and whether the secretary proposes to purchase the rights of the original grantees, or to secure an extension of time, or both, with the money asked for, cannot be learned.

Nominations.

Washington, June 11.—Patrick B. Sinnott of Oregon, Indian agent for Grand Ronde agency, Oregon. Registers of land offices: Henry Robert of Iowa, Cheyenne, Wyoming; O. P. Chisholm, Illinois, Bozeman, Montana. Postmaster: George E. Mowery, Phoenix, Arizona.

Colonel Morrow to be Court-martialed.

Washington, June 11.—Colonel Morrow, whose name figured prominently in the Swaim case, in connection with duplicate pay accounts, is to be court-martialed.

Eisendecker's Recall.

Senate.

Washington, June 11.—When the doors reopened Butler offered a resolution, which under objection went over one day, providing for the appointment of a special committee to examine into the condition of the national banks of New York city, and ascertain specially whether funds or bonds have been illegally used by officials, and if the national banking law has been violated in any respect.

The chair then laid before the senate the consular and diplomatic bill, and a vote was taken on the amendments agreed to in committee of the whole, reserving, however, for separate vote, the $250,000 item already referred to. All other amendments were agreed to, substantially as reported by the senate committee on appropriations.

Vest and Jones desired a separate vote on the $250,000 item.

When the chair was about to put the question on this item, Vest said: "It is due to the country and the senate that the committee on appropriations should state why this enormous sum is asked, and what its purpose really and honestly is. I call upon the chairman of the committee to state the real purpose of this appropriation."

To this, Allison, chairman of the appropriation committee, made no response.

Van Wyck offered the following amendment to the clause referred to: "But no portion of said $250,000 shall be paid, directly or through the Nicaraguan government, to the owners of the concession granted by the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua."

Allison moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Van Wyck asked Allison to withdraw the motion, which Allison declined to do. The motion of Allison was agreed to and the amendment was laid on the table.

Van Wyck then announced that he had voted in the affirmative and now moved to reconsider the vote.

At this point Allison, rising to a question of privilege, moved that the motion to reconsider be heard under rule 35, in secret session.

The motion was agreed to, and the doors were again closed. When they reopened Van Wyck asked the chair to state the question, which the chair did, saying the amendment of Van Wyck to the amendment proposed by the senate committee on appropriations had been laid on the table, and that the senator had moved to reconsider the vote by which his amendment had been so laid on the table.

Van Wyck—Then when we went into secret session the amendment of the committee, appropriating $250,000, was under consideration.

The presiding officer (Mr. Harris) said the amendment of the committee had not been disposed of in the senate, but the pending question was to reconsider the vote by which the amendment of the senator from Nebraska was laid on the table.

Van Wyck—Then the proper matter for the consideration of the open senate is the further consideration of a vote upon that amendment.

The presiding officer—The pending question is, the bill having been read three times, shall it pass?

Van Wyck protested that the record would not hereafter show any action upon the amendment in question. He thought he had a right, as senator, to demand that a vote be taken in open session on that amendment. [Several senators: "Question! question!"]

The question "Shall the bill pass?" was put, and on this the nays and yeas were called by Vance. The result was 34 yeas to 1 nay (Vance), no quorum voting. Vest, Jones and Van Wyck were paired with absent senators but announced if they had not been paired they would have voted against the bill, the two last named senators because of the way in which it was attempted to pass the bill.

The roll of the senate was called, but did not secure a quorum, and the senate adjourned.

House.

Washington, June 11.—When the clause in the river and harbor bill providing for the construction of the Hennepin canal was reached, various points of order were raised against it, for the purpose of eliminating it from the bill, but the speaker overruled them. After concluding the appropriation portion of the bill, the committee rose and the house took a recess until to-morrow.

TO PREVENT POLITICAL ASSESSMENTS.

Washington, June 11.—At a meeting of the house committee on appropriations to-day the following resolution, offered by Randall, was adopted, as an amendment to the general deficiency bill, by a vote of 6 to 3, a party vote of those present: "That no senator, representative or delegate in congress, or senator, representative or delegate elect, and no officer, clerk or employe of the United States, or any department, branch or bureau thereof, or any person receiving any salary or compensation from moneys derived from the treasury of the United States, or any contractor under the United States government, shall give or hand over to any person or persons, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing, on account of or to be applied to the promotion of any political object, whatever; that any person guilty of a violation of this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not exceeding $5000, or imprisonment not exceeding a term of three years, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court."

The cultured maiden from Boston wrote to her friend that she had just been to hear Mr. Joseph Emmett sing "Pique-a-boo."—Puck.

The messenger-boy is so called after the famous Messenger breed of race horses; but not because of his swiftness. It was on account of the slowness of the former, the name having been bestowed ironically, after the Indian fashion of nomenclature, which makes it proper to call a great coward Man-not-Afraid-of-Satan, and the bravest of all braves Man-Afraid-of-a-Boiled-Hen.—Puck.

VERDICT OF THE PRESS.

New York Sun: A great many republicans are opposed to Mr. Blaine, but those who imagine that because of such disaffection the country is now to witness a spirited canvass and an easy triumph for the opposition are, in our judgment, very much in error. Mr. Blaine is a fertile and sensational politician, and he will force the fighting from the start. [The editorial concludes by warning the democrats that it will be no holiday task to defeat Blaine.]

New York Commercial Advertiser: President Arthur can afford to be beaten by the elements which have prevailed at Chicago. If the opinionated reformers, the cow boys and the star route gang did not openly clasp hands to compass this result, they worked for a common object. Can the party successfully fight through a campaign in which it must be constantly on the defensive? Can the upright and intelligent voters of the party be persuaded to support Mr. Blaine. If the man the convention has chosen to supplant President Arthur can approach in dignity, purity and in patriotism the administration we are going to lose, he will do no more than the best judges of events and character have thought to be possible.

The New York Times, under the caption, "Facing the Fires of Defeat," says: "It is best, after all, that James G. Blaine should be the candidate of the republican party. He represents the average of republican principles and purposes of republican honor and conscience as they now are. The party had its eyes open; it has taken the step not in the dark, but in the broad daylight. There will be nothing ambiguous about the defeat of Mr. Blaine. He [illegible] clearly read the verdict in advance: 'A candidate unworthy of confidence and a party too careless of its own honor to be longer trusted with the nation's.' The defeat will be the salvation of the republican party. The Times will not support Mr. Blaine for the presidency; it will advise no man to vote for him, and its reasons for this course are perfectly well understood by everybody that has read it."

New York Star (Tammany organ): Blaine's nomination was brought about by coalition of the worst elements of the republicans. In looking ahead, however, the Star is not rash enough to affirm that even Blaine will necessarily be defeated by anybody put up in November against him. He will command, practically, unlimited resources, for the monopolists and jobbers who anticipate favors from him will contribute lavishly to his canvass. Finally, he will be fervently supported by those workers of his party who will not stop to reflect whether a smart rogue is not unworthy to be the chief magistrate of a great and intelligent nation.

New York World: The nomination of Blaine and Logan is clearly the result of a shameless political bargain and represents the triumph of the most mercenary and worst elements of the republican party. The vote of Logan decided Blaine's nomination. The vote of Blaine nominated Logan in return.

The New York Herald (condemning the nomination): Although every man who cares for the purity of public life and the welfare of the country must evidently regret a nomination like this, yet there has grown within a day or two in many circles a sentiment that will regard the nomination with a certain grim sense of satisfaction. Indignation of decent opinion at the ever-recurring bulletins of the Blaine candidacy, a revolt against the open shamelessness of the Blaine men and their methods, and all their schemes of carrying things with a roar, and not by reason, has made men feel that at least there was perhaps but one cure for all this, which was to have the Blaine element carry the convention and nominate their man and then see the man and the party buried out of sight by an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the people. All have felt that they have their cure before them, and they may at last congratulate themselves that they are now indeed in a fair way to have done with Blaine forever."

New York Tribune: James G. Blaine has been nominated by the people and will be elected by the people. For a quarter of a century no other candidate has been more clearly preferred by the voters. Mr. Blaine is the strongest candidate the republican party could have nominated, because he best represents its earnestness. The nomination of General Logan for vice president was also especially fortunate. The ticket cannot be beaten.

Albany Journal: Blaine's nomination makes the republican party invincible as an exponent of progressive ideas, and its courageous action will be worthily led by a man whom it has honored with its approval this day.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Contrary to the hopes and wishes of the Inter Ocean, the republican national convention has placed in nomination for president James G. Blaine. As the convention is the highest constitutional party authority, we bow to its decision, and, as a soldier in the great republican army, fall into line and catch step with the advancing column. We are not ashamed to express regret that our own candidate was not successful, but the cause of good government and the success of the principles of the republican party are more important than the advancement of any man, however worthy or deserving, and it was for these that we enlisted in the service long ago.

Chicago Times: The presidential candidacy of Mr. James G. Blaine is a menace of evil to the republic. Of all the citizens that were proposed to the assembly of partisan electors yesterday, and of all whose names have been mentioned in connection with that office, Mr. Blaine is the least fit, the least trustworthy. His partyism is not the partyism of a statesman who is guided by sincere convictions, founded on broad knowledge and understanding. It is the partyism of a mere passion for leadership actuating a man of intense prejudices, of ugly temper, and of defective understanding, whose highest happiness is in playing the ring leader in a [illegible]. In no sense of the word is Mr. Blaine a statesman. His strange and worse than inglorious South American diplomacy was an exhibition of meddling and reckless propensity to "rush in where angels fear to tread." That chapter alone in the public career of Blaine contains conclusive proof to a thinking mind of the peril with which his selection for the presidency menaces this republic.

Chicago Tribune: The nomination of James G. Blaine is the triumph of popular sentiment. His nomination will be received with acclaim as a long-deferred tribute to his great abilities and eminent statesmanship; but it has a significance far beyond any personal considerations. It is an evidence that under the rules and practices which govern the republican party, of which district representation in the national convention is the most essential, the popular will of the party cannot be defeated. No living American statesman ever filled the hearts of the American people more completely than Blaine does. The martyrdom of Lincoln and Garfield has won for them a peculiar veneration which no man in life can hope to attain. But Blaine has reached the highest place in public esteem. Blaine in addition to all his personal claims is the legitimate successor to the popular confidence which Garfield's brief administration inspired. As Garfield's premier he was almost as conspicuous a figure as Garfield himself, and he was the originator of the scientific American policy which was the most striking and brilliant conception of Garfield's administration. No presidential candidate ever had a better assurance of election than Blaine has to-day, unless it was General Jackson or Thomas Jefferson.

Wheeling Register: Mr. Blaine's success in the contest for the nomination in the face of the combined opposition of the hypocritical "goody good" element of the George William Curtis school of reformers and the administration with the machine power of federal patronage is nothing less than a miracle. It is due to the tenacious fidelity and the inspiration of an honest sentiment on the part of his adherents and to the skill and brain of his aggressive young lieutenant, Stephen B. Elkins. Mr. Blaine's nomination, however, does not mean victory to the republican party. It will excite more enthusiasm among a large number of republicans than any other that could have been made. But at the same time there will be a deeper and more bitter resentment against him by the minority element. Taking into consideration his availability in the doubtful states, Blaine is the weakest of all the candidates whose names were presented to the convention, possibly with the exception of Arthur. The conservative interest will receive his nomination with suspicion and in a contest with Tilden there can be no doubt as to the result.

Chicago Evening Journal: The plumed knight heads the column which will march on to victory in November. No one need fear defeat under such bold, courageous, gallant leadership. The nomination of Mr. Blaine assures a vigorous and enthusiastic campaign. The young men, as well as many of the older ones of the nation, are unmistakably for Blaine. They will make it exceedingly lively for the other side and roll up a tidal wave of popular support and of popular ballots for the brave and able man of Maine that will carry him into the White house with a sweeping majority. This may be set down as a "foregone conclusion."

Chicago Tribune: No living American statesman ever filled the hearts of the people more completely than Blaine does. The martyrdom of Lincoln and Garfield has won for them a peculiar veneration which no man in life can hope to attain, but Blaine has reached the highest place in public esteem. He is admired as the most brilliant statesman of his day; he is loved for his warm nature, his American temper so broad, bold and spirited that it has won the applause of his political opponents. The elevation of such a man to the chief magistracy will be a matter of pride to every patriotic American citizen. The same universal admiration which pushed him into

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

Astorian: In 1880, 970 votes were polled in Clatsop county; in 1882 there were 1206 votes cast. Last Tuesday there were 1892 votes polled. This shows a substantial increase. Can any other county in the state show an increase of 95 per cent. in four years in the number of votes cast?

A new steam ferry is being built across the Columbia at this point.

Correspondence from Alkali: Last Monday one man residing in McDaniel's canyon, between the big and the little Burnt creek, lost 150 sheep, and another as many more, by being drowned from the effects of a waterspout. Another had his corral washed away, and two calves carried a distance of over three-quarters of a mile, but were saved. The loss to other property was quite heavy. Last Wednesday morning Mr. W. B. Mills of Goldendale, who had been in this state shearing sheep, was taken sick about three miles south of this place, and died on Friday. He was a stranger here, so our people procured him a coffin, a new suit of clothes, and hired a team to take his remains to his family. Cause of sickness unknown.

A meeting of the Pioneer society was held at Ashland last Thursday, when the following officers were elected: President, Thed. Cameron; vice presidents, B. F. Myer and Wm. Kahler; secretary, S. J. Jacksonville exchange: H. B. Mace of Burns, Grant county, called on us yesterday, from whom we learn that his brother Fritz Mace, who was shot by John Bland in the fatal encounter in which Horace Mace was killed, is improving rapidly and no fears are entertained for his recovery. Mr. Mace informs us that farmers and stock men are doing well in Harney valley, and that many immigrants are taking up land and making comfortable homes.

On Friday afternoon when the news was received at Wallula Junction of the nomination of Blaine, there was an impromptu jollification. A Pullman employe mounted a box car and made a rousing speech, causing much applause.

A Seattle exchange says: The cherry crop of 1884 is in some places a partial failure. A blight has struck the trees and caused the fruit to fall off before reaching maturity. The lack of rain has also had the effect to prevent full growth. The crop would have been 25 per cent. greater had not these causes intervened.

Seattle Chronicle: A serious cutting affray occurred Friday at Port Blakely between two siwashes employed in the mill at that place, in the course of which both received several severe cuts. The one most seriously injured who received two very severe stabs, was brought to Seattle and taken to Providence hospital. The condition of both is critical.

Last Saturday the body of a man was found on the beach, about a mile south of the Shoalwater bay lighthouse. He had been in the water so long that identification was impossible. A white handled pocket knife, a five cent nickel and a leather purse were the only things found on his person. He had on gum boots, blue overalls, red flannel under shirt and blue over shirt. He was buried on the beach where he was found.

Says a Walla Walla exchange: As the west bound train was between Twin Wells and Ainsworth, Saturday evening, an old man left his wife in one immigrant car to go into another to get a drink of water. Not returning as soon as expected, the aged wife, aided by the train officials, instituted a search for her husband, but was unable to find him on the train. It is surmised that the old man fell off the train while it was in motion and was badly hurt, if not killed. Our informant did not learn the name of the aged couple. At Ainsworth dispatches were sent back directing a search to be made for the missing man.

Walla Walla Statesman: Probably the first Chinaman that ever exercised the right of suffrage in this territory voted at the Chaney city election last Monday. His name was Charlie Walmukto, and he hailed from Cincinnati, Ohio, where he took out his naturalization papers. Charlie says he is a republican, and not an imported democrat. He is probably the first Ohio man who ever came to the territory without an officeholder's commission in his pocket.

This is the practical manner in which the Whatcom Reveille puts it: How shall we celebrate the Fourth of July this year? Last year we drained our pockets to buy fireworks and powder. Then we exploded the cannon and killed two Indians, which cost us another collection to mollify the Indians and keep them from licking us. The Reveille favors a more enjoyable and practical manner of celebration now. For instance, let the bay cities have a union picnic. We have local orators enough at home to pluck every feather out of the proud bird of freedom. The fire company will probably have a dance in the evening at Whatcom, to raise funds toward the erection of a building upon the lots recently acquired. Let us have a meeting to consider plans of celebration.

Last Saturday the sealing schooner Teaser arrived at Seattle from the cape, where she has been engaged in seal fishing for several months past. Captain Quinn reports the catch as double that of last year, and fully as great as that of three years ago. The following American schooners were engaged in the sealing business this season: Vanderbilt and City of Napa, from San Francisco; Lottie and Champion, of Port Townsend, and Teaser of Seattle. These vessels all employed Indians. Two other American schooners—the Otter and Alexander—were engaged in the business, using guns for the capture of their game instead of spears. Besides these there were a number of English vessels employed. The season opened very early this year, and seals were plentiful. They came in during January and left for their breeding grounds north about the 1st of June. Two of the San Francisco schooners followed the seals on their northward journey.

It was in hunting rabbits, not rebels, that Powel Clayton, of Arkansas, lost his arm.

A wild western paper says that the greenbackers nominated Gen. Butler and Gen. West with general idiocy for a platform and general chaos for a rallying cry.

Senator Wade Hampton, of South Carolina, is reported as saying that he thinks the nomination of Tilden by the democrats would be a mistake, but he will support him if nominated. His preference is for Bayard.

The Hon. Increase Sumner Kimball, of Maine, who is 84 years old and the last surviving member of Governor Kent's council of 1841, is in attendance upon the supreme court in Alfred at the present term, and as active and quick-witted as many lawyers of 65.

Mr. J. W. Shuckers does not like the nomination of General Butler by the greenbackers, because he is trying to straddle both the greenback and democratic platforms, and Mr. Henry Carey Baird does not support Butler because of "the ridiculous tariff plank" in the greenback platform.

It is worthy of notice that whereas numerous complaints have been made of the poor hotel accommodations at Chicago, not one word has been said about the water.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 12, 1884.

WHERE IS THE BUGBEAR?

It is by no means so certain as some doubtful people seem to set it down that there will be any considerable "independent" defection in the east, while it will occur to those who have carefully watched events that whatever there is will not amount to anything.

We have been waiting patiently for something more than the fragmentary opinions that have come by telegraph. The large newspapers have been coming along from day to day, each trying to argue out a case to suit its own particular desires. One would say that Blaine would surely win, while another would say that Blaine's forces had "gone all to pieces." The wise opinions were as varied as the preconceived notions, and the situation resolved itself into a belief that it would be just as well to let the papers alone until they should begin to come of a date late enough to tell something of the feeling after the nomination. They have now begun to come, and the fuller expressions are not half so discouraging to those who were waiting to be discouraged, as they had hoped. Ex-Governor Long, of Massachusetts, who is admitted to be the reformer of reformers in that state, says in an interview that he shall work for the ticket, and that Massachusetts will go for Blaine. He does not hesitate in the same conversation to say that he believes that Senator Hoar and Mr. Lodge will do the same thing. Mr. George William Curtis refuses to say much about New York, but he says very freely that there will be no organized movement of the independents. It is very plain that if there is no "organized" movement there will be no starting point whatever, and the disaffection will mean simply a few individual votes.

It is always an easy thing to find fault, and it is a very wise thing to take council before a battle and look squarely in the face at the weaknesses of one's own army; but after the forces have moved out to fight, it would not be considered good generalship for an army to have large banners hoisted here and there along the advancing column on which should be emblazoned, "This is the weakest point!" "Here is a spot that is not very strong!" "This company once stampeded in action." This would not seem like a very wise piece of generalship, and it is fair to believe, especially since we have read a few of the papers that have come to hand, that some of the men who were in the councils before the campaign was begun and its leaders chosen will do the same amount of good fighting that they have done on other occasions when they failed to have the dominating voice in the selection of the general. It is not only easy to find fault, but it is the regular thing for some one to jump up and check off the bad ones. Those who start doubtfully in at the beginning generally have one eye on somebody they think more doubtful than themselves, and so the party always finds itself going into a campaign with a list of deserters who generally not only do not desert, but are found fighting in the front rank before the battle is over.

It is written in a very good book—reference to which was made in the Chicago convention by Hon. Martin I. Townsend—"He that is not for me is against me." Mr. Townsend did not refer to this particular sentence in the book, but this will apply to those who are now regarded as doubtful as to what they will do, and perhaps already determined to work against the election of the republican ticket. Such men must take one road or the other before they go much farther on their journey. They pretend to be the best of republicans.

Do they want to see the democrats in power? If they do, they will work against the party, now with no better reason than that they preferred Mr. Edmunds to Mr. Blaine. They cannot, we believe, work the overthrow of the party. THE OREGONIAN has said, in the past days when council before the battle was in order, that it preferred another of the possible generals, but it does not prefer democratic supremacy, and has no excuse to make for those who do prefer democratic supremacy.

It may do for some in Massachusetts and New York to raise the pharisaical cry of "I am holier than thou," but we do not believe any man or set of men will be permitted to speak for the voting majority if they talk like that.

They are men of learning and experience. They want to see the government of the country improved. Do they—can they believe it would be improved at the hands of the democrats? Can any thinking man believe that they would enjoy life better with the senile Tilden in the White House, the swaggering Blackburn leading the senate, the shifty Randall bargaining for power in the house and all running on the principle of "good at all hazards", led by Henry Watterson for the sake of a domineering southern sentiment? If this is what they prefer, we can understand why they turn and fire into the ranks of their friends; otherwise we can not, for this is what they would get, and they would never live long enough to atone for their mistake by anything they could accomplish to undo it.

Now, and from this on to November, it is and will be republicans against democrats—not Blaine against Edmunds. This was a question of council; this is a matter of success for the best that can be had in government. It will not take long to adjust the lines and to see how many republicans are on the wrong side.

If these men think this a time of peril, how will they answer for their cowardice in deserting the party; if not, how will they reconcile their nice notions with a course of sulking, rather than helping with us and all good republicans to make the next administration the best that may be?

In the first place, we see no bugbears in the far east. Time, as it brings the truth of the situation, will probably show few deserters; and, in the second place, we share the confidence that comes with every report of the country's feeling on the subject that this will be a most spirited and successful campaign, ending in a victory that will silence forever this cry that comes from mistaken party virtue. There is but one way to fight, and that is to fight on your own side.

It does not seem like an impossible task to overcome the small democratic majority in North Carolina and make it republican this year. The majority for Hancock in that state is stated to have been but three hundred, which is next to none at all. We have been promised two or three southern states for the past three campaigns, and it is about time the party began to realize on these promises. The southern republicans, and some of the northern men who were at Chicago, now talk reassuringly about carrying four southern states for Blaine—Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Florida. Nobody will base calculations upon this promise; yet it is by no means impossible of fulfillment, particularly in the case of North Carolina. The south has no animosities, either immediate or entailed, to cherish against Mr. Blaine, and he will doubtless make many votes for the party in the states named, and possibly have a majority in some of them. The people of the south are fond of brilliant political campaigns.

In the midst of political excitement the dispatches have failed to tell what the authorities of St. Louis have done about General Sherman's street sprinkler. They ordered him to stop using it or to get a special license. He no longer had power to order out the troops, so he wrote a sharp note back, telling the authorities, in effect, that if they did not let him and his sprinkler alone he would move to some other town. Here we are left, with the story half told, like the novel reader who loses his book just as the hero is hanging to a breaking limb over a deep chasm. The country wants to know what was done about it. While waiting, we cannot avoid the reflection that the general would have written a "scorcher" had they dared to nominate him at Chicago, arguing from the severity in tone of his water-sprinkling note of defiance.

VOICES FROM THE EAST.

The first exchanges from the east published since the nomination of Blaine arrived yesterday. We are able to gather from them a fuller expression of the opinion of the press and of prominent men than we have received by wire. Senator Sherman says that he will support the ticket heartily. Senator Hoar could not tell just how the nominations would be received in Massachusetts, but supposes the state can be depended on to give a majority for Blaine. Ex-Governor Long will do his best for the success of the ticket, and believes it will be elected. Senator Edmunds says the nomination "ought to be the most popular thing going. All the great central states and pretty nearly a majority of New York—on the latter votes where the tug of war has got to come—were very enthusiastic for him. As a test of what the republican party wants—the states that have got republican votes to give—it certainly furnishes a very strong reason for hope for the success of the party. He certainly was a great deal stronger than anybody else in all of these states that are doubtful." Senator Hawley places some stress upon the consideration presented in THE OREGONIAN, that, under the responsibilities of his office, Blaine will be less "brilliant" than his critics have feared. He says that "when Mr. Blaine delivered his masterly eulogy upon President Garfield he dealt fairly with all hostile elements. It was the work of a strong and well-poised man. When the same man shall have attained the summit of his ambition in office he will in like manner disappoint many of his critics. Of course it will be a hot campaign," but he thinks Blaine will be elected.

Of course all of Mr. Blaine's particular friends were delighted and enthusiastic, and think the party will win a brilliant victory. The democrats are also pleased with the nomination. Speaker Carlisle says the democrats will have an easier time than he had expected, and the general feeling among democrats at Washington is of the same character. They all insist that Mr. Blaine is the weakest of the republicans proposed for the nomination; partly on account of his record, but principally because so many of his party are deadly enemies and will lose no opportunity to knife him and the objectionable crowd they see him surrounded with.

A great deal is made by republicans of the fact that "Blaine is the choice of the people." His nomination, they say, is a victory of the people over the politicians, and it is expected that the great enthusiasm which formed itself spontaneously in the hearts of republicans and bursts like a huge wave over the petty dykes that hostile factions and official discipline had built up against it at Chicago will lead their favorite steadily on to the White house. The value of this presumed popularity in the close states can hardly be overestimated.

TOO MANY FLANAGANS.

The presence of more than 200 federal officials at the Chicago convention and the consequent abuse of their privilege, ought to direct renewed attention to this feature of our politics with such positiveness as to reform it altogether. Not only was the administration represented by active officials as both delegates and workers, but Collector Robertson and some others were there working for any candidate to beat the administration. Four years ago Webster Flanagan of Texas acquired a national reputation by declaring that the final cause of the party was the offices in its gift, a doctrine often acted upon in political life, but never before announced so frankly. This doctrine was practically exemplified by the presence of 108 office holders among the 216 delegates from the southern states. These men left their posts in order to do their best to sustain the hand, or, for a consideration, to smite the hand that feeds them. It was a disreputable feature of the convention, and if there was anything of real devotion for civil service reform in comparison with the pretension and mock service lavished upon this movement the spectacle of federal officials trying to make a candidate to keep themselves in place would never be seen again. There is something still to be done before civil-service reform can be deemed triumphant. Resolutions are useless, laws unavailing, declarations of faith verbal froth, if acts like these are allowed to go on unrebuked. If there are none but office-holders in the republican party of the south, these "rotten boroughs" would be more fitly represented by vacant seats. Senator Edmunds, who has "the antiseptic qualities of cold" was not so enthusiastic over the nominations as to neglect to condemn the failure of the convention to change the basis of representation in future conventions, so as to prevent the attendance of so large a delegation of the Flanagan brigade from the south. All the wire-pullers, traffickers, adventurers and spoilsmen who were so active at Chicago knew they would be frozen out if Edmunds was president. There is an atmosphere of purity about him which is extremely chilling to all this type of politicians. The congealing process which the people have applied to the great bosses needs to be extended to all these federal placemen—these servants of the people, not of a party, supported by taxes levied on democrats and republicans alike—who are becoming unusually impertinent this year. They must be repelled in their attempt to lead the party if it is to continue to command the respect and confidence of the country.

The New York Evening Post calls attention to the fact that under the present telegraph system, by the multiplication of wires, cross wires, private wires, switches, repeaters, and various devices known only to experts, anybody anyway connected with the lines can hear and know what is going on over the wires. Communications sent by postal cards are no more open to inspection than messages sent by this modern system of telegraphy. The Post says: "We know of a case where a newspaper correspondent on the Atlantic seaboard, sitting in his own office, has heard private messages going from a hotel in Chicago to the central office, Chicago, and this without any design on his part. The truth is there is no longer any privacy in telegraphing except by the use of cipher. The multiplication of wires incident to the expanded use of the telegraph has opened innumerable leaks in every direction. The difficulty is incorrigible. The telegraph companies have lost control of it, and the public should understand that secrecy is not to be depended upon unless the sender of the telegram takes his own precautions to conceal the meaning of his message."

After all that has been said and done to reduce the nation's income, it appears that Uncle Sam still has a cool $100,000,000 surplus, and perhaps when the fiscal year ends he will find that he has $5,000,000 more than that. The public debt, less cash in the treasury, is now only $1,459,187,492, or nearly $92,000,000 less than it was eleven months ago, and congress has done nothing to create the expectation that the reduction will be less during the year to come. It would require less than fifteen years to extinguish the whole debt were the present rate of payment to be maintained, but the surplus accumulates much faster than the obligations of the government mature. The debt of England is now lower than it has been before since 1811, and yet it is more than double that of the United States, and John Bull reduced it only $42,000,000 last year. History furnishes no parallel for our reduction of our public debt from $2,844,649,626, its highest point, in 1865, but as payment cannot continue at the rate of $100,000,000 a year, something ought to be done to reduce the nation's surplus by relieving the people of a part of the burden of taxes.

Some statistics contained in a letter to the New York Evening Post from Chicago strikingly illustrate the great truth that every delegate to a national convention has his day, and that it is not a long one. It appears that out of the 1640 delegates and alternates elected to the convention of 1884, there are only ninety-six who were, either as principals or alternates, among the men who assisted to make history for the republican party and the national government in the convention of 1880. What could better show the size of this country, the rapidity with which leaders of greater or less degree are produced here, the brevity of political life and its intensity while it lasts?

Lars O. Smith, the "Swedish brandy king," who has turned temperance advocate, subscribes to the doctrine that "the fewer the public houses the less drunkenness you will have; the more places where men can drink, the more they will drink." He is opposed to the Gottenburg system, which he says is corrupt, and moreover, promotes the consumption of impure liquors. He made a fight against it by starting an opposition at his distilleries on the river near Stockholm and carrying the people to his resorts free by steamer. The Swedish brandy is distilled from potatoes and requires expensive rectifying. Mr. Smith favors the licensing of a few places at a high fee—$1500 a year—and is active in introducing savings banks, co-operative kitchens and other institutions for a working class.

For the first time since 1875, when the south appeared in congress by its democratic representatives, there appears on the rolls of the house of representatives a larger number of members who served in the union army than there does of members who served on the confederate side. In the present house of representatives, then, there are 70 members and delegates who served in the union army and 50 who served on the confederate side. Twelve of the ex-union soldiers are serving as democratic representatives and one of the ex-confederates is a republican. Of the senators there are 22 ex-confederate soldiers and 13 union veterans. Two of the former vote with the republicans. Besides the soldiers there are a half dozen ex-members of the confederate congress in the present body.

The independent nomination of candidates for councilmen is simply intended, as we understand it, to make such a demonstration of strength as will induce the regular party convention to indorse their candidates, or present equally good ones for the suffrages of the people. It is not a personal matter. It is a question of ends, not of men, and is undertaken in accordance with the view which was presented in THE OREGONIAN on Monday, of securing the election of reliable men, pledged to maintain high license and give the city a pure and efficient government.

POLICE COURT.—The dock at this institution was graced yesterday by a number of as worthless scamps as can be scared up in the city. James Scott willingly plead guilty to being drunk and disorderly, but he smiled on the other side of his face when he was sent below for ten days. C. Sheehan, a bullet-headed scallawag who follows the profession of a "sure thing" gambler, plead not guilty to beating a woman who took up with him, under the hallucination that it was a fine thing to marry a gambler. His case will be attended to-day. Harry Reiss, better known as "Handsome Harry," to distinguish him from another worthless fellow known as "Pale-faced Harry," pleaded guilty to beating a miserable specimen of half-breed femininity called Jennie Avon, whose natural ugliness was increased by a swollen face. He was fined $40. Jacob Feldman, one of the proprietors of the disreputable dive on Salmon street near Third, waived the reading of a complaint charging him with robbing the trunk of one of the female inmates of his place. His case was continued till to-day, with permission for him to go at large on $500 bail. Phil. Feiber, an accomplice, will also pass his examination to-day, and it is hoped that both may be promoted to a higher grade of prison life. Mike Furey, Charles Baker and Frank Evans, three of the worthies who resort to any means to assist dive keepers in paying their license, were examined on a charge of robbing a Swedish sailor. The result will be announced to-day.

THE HODGE-ROBERTSON WEDDING.—Last night the beautiful auditorium of the Church of Our Father was the scene of probably the finest gathering ever assembled within its walls, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Hannah Bell Hodge, only child of Mrs. Charles Hodge, and Mr. David Robertson, of the wholesale hardware house of Foster & Robertson. Most of the ladies were in evening dress. A large arch, composed of ferns and roses, had been erected in front of the pulpit, the conventional marriage bell hanging beneath the center. In the baptismal font a wild syringa bush was placed, while the pulpit, the organ loft and the walls were profusely decorated with various tasteful designs in flowers. The ushers were Messrs. Hamilton Corbett, Paul R. Deady, John C. Lewis and Wm. Wygant. Promptly at half-past eight o'clock the bridal party entered the east door and walked slowly to the arch: Miss May Failing, escorted by Mr. W. M. Ladd; Miss Mary Millard, escorted by Mr. Hamilton Corbett; Miss Snell of San Francisco, with Mr. John C. Lewis; Mrs. Hodge, the bride's mother, upon the arm of Mr. George W. Snell, and then the bride and groom. Mr. Corbett was "best man." The bride looked surpassingly lovely in rich dress of white corded silk. Rev. T. L. Eliot, in a short ceremony, pronounced the couple husband and wife. After prayer and benediction the bridal party retired by the west door in inverse order.

CANE PRESENTATION.—One of those pleasant affairs so common among the brethren of the Mystic tie when they meet occurred yesterday in the Grand Lodge of Oregon now in session. It was the presentation of a beautiful gold-headed cane by the members of the lodge to their old and respected brother, Berryman Jennings, who was the first grand master of the order in this jurisdiction. The presentation speech was made by Past Grand Master S. F. Chadwick in his usual felicitous style. The recipient was taken completely by surprise, and was quite overcome by the compliment paid him, and the kindly sentiments expressed toward him by his brethren. He replied in a few feeling remarks, and his lack of words on the occasion was supplied by Grand Chaplain J. R. N. Bell, who came to the relief of his venerable brother and did the matter full justice.

WHOLESALE ADVERTISING.—W. W. Cole's agent has secured a lot on the south side of B street opposite Nineteenth. It is the nearest place that could be secured large enough to hold the immense tents. The rink block would not accommodate the side show. Such wholesale advertising as Cole is now doing here is simply astonishing. Nothing like it was ever known before. And he is not through yet. Next week another car load of "paper" will arrive, and with it twelve bill posters, who will cover all available space not taken by the first gang. The shows are now in Salt Lake, and will come up to Garrison over the Utah and Northern, thence by easy stages to Portland.

VIA THE ISTHMUS.—O. R. Darling, of Boston, a member of the legal fraternity, arrived here on the Columbia Tuesday evening after a pleasant trip by way of the Isthmus. The journey across that narrow neck of land is at present more than usually interesting on account of the great canal, on which a large number of men, principally Jamaica negroes and Chinese, are employed, and the excavations for which are near the railroad all the way across and intersect it in two places. The various little towns along the line are enjoying a boom at present, and the price of yams, bananas and chickens has "riz." Mr. Darling intends to remain here permanently and engage in the practice of his profession.

OBJECT OF CHARITY.—A Mr. Richards, living on North Sixteenth street, while working at his trade, ship carpentering, in July last, received a bodily injury which has disabled him for earning a livelihood since that time. He and his family are now in destitute circumstances, and while his friends have already helped him to a considerable extent, a subscription paper for his assistance has been put in circulation. It is a worthy purpose, and an appeal for genuine charity should not lie unheeded. Mr. N. Versteeg has charge of the paper, and will vouch for the genuineness of the claim for charity.

Mr. W. B. Wilshire, the well known safe man, arrived last night from Astoria, having come that far by the Columbia. He will remain a week or more.

AN OCCASIONAL CHANCE.

Special notice of our readers is called to the remarkable low prices asked for fine and stylish goods at Mozart's cloak and suit house, No. 70 Morrison street. At the rate the articles are selling they certainly cannot last long. Their entire stock of millinery is going for a mere nothing; hats, plumes and flowers being sacrificed. A 350 whale-bone French woven corset—regular price, $1. Mozart's have reduced it to 75 cents for any size. Fifty ready-made suits in wash goods, ginghams, lawns and sateens from $3 to $5. Ladies, avail yourselves of these bargains at Mozart's, No. 70 Morrison street.

Art Mention.

There is without a doubt no place the size of Portland that can present as large a percentage of its people who thoroughly understand and appreciate music and kindred arts. As an illustration take the Orchestral Union concerts, lectures on art, etc. If a fine painting or some beautiful workmanship in photography be placed on exhibition hundreds will go and see it. We would call your attention to the large and life-like crayon portrait of Hon. James G. Blaine, which is on exhibition at the photographic parlors of Abell & Son, No. 70 Washington street. It is the work of Mr. Moore, the artist, whose studio is in the same gallery. There is also on exhibition some excellent photographic work of our society people, which is the finest and best finished work we have ever seen. Take the elevator.

According to previous notice, the ladies of the First Presbyterian church will give an entertainment in the vestry of the church corner Washington and Third streets, for the benefit of the North Portland mission. The exercises will begin at 8 o'clock, and will consist of music, reading and tableaux, all taken from the works of a well-known and favorite poet, closing with a view of the author himself. Mrs. Irwin of San Francisco will sing, and the Vosen Brothers will assist, besides other local and imported talent. At the close of the programme, lemonade and other refreshments may be had. Admission, 25 cents.

A SENSATIONAL MARRIAGE.

After a Year's Enforced Separation, Maurice Hageman Meets a Former Wife and Is Married to Her.

Maurice Hageman, stage director of the Tivoli, was married yesterday under rather romantic and peculiar circumstances to Miss Ballou, a daughter of Addie Ballou, whose name is familiar to many readers of THE OREGONIAN, she having obtained considerable notoriety in this state some years since as a lecturer. It appears that Mr. Hageman was married to Miss Ballou in California a little over a year ago contrary to the wishes of her mother. About two weeks after the marriage Mrs. Ballou succeeded in separating the pair—it is said by chloroforming them both, and has kept them apart ever since, till yesterday, when they met about five minutes before they were reunited. For a long time Mr. Hageman was in ignorance of the whereabouts of his stolen wife and her mother during this time succeeded in procuring a legal separation of the couple. At length they learned each other's whereabouts and established communication. Finally Mr. Hageman came up here. A day or two since he received a telegram from his former wife, stating that she would leave on the Columbia for this city. About the same time Chief of Police Parrish received a dispatch from Mrs. Ballou, asking him to arrest her daughter on her arrival, and safely keep her till further orders. Mr. Smith, of the Cleveland paint and oil works, also received a dispatch from Mrs. Ballou to the same effect. So, when the Columbia arrived, on Tuesday evening, there were three parties on hand to receive Miss Ballou, to-wit.: the chief of police, Mr. Smith and some friends of Mr. Hageman, whose duties would not allow him to be present. The friends of Mr. Hageman being personally unknown to her, she refused to go with them, and notwithstanding the winning ways of Chief of Police Parrish she had no desire to go with him, and it was therefore arranged that she should accompany Mr. Smith, who was a friend of her mother. When Mr. Hageman found that his bride had again disappeared he was wild with excitement, and at an early hour this morning secured a legal counsellor and commenced a vigorous search for her. After considerable trouble she was found at the residence of Mr. Smith, and thither Mr. Hageman repaired, armed with a marriage license and accompanied by Rev. T. L. Eliot. The circumstances having been explained, Mr. Smith offered no objection to a meeting between the anxious ones, and they were soon locked in each other's arms, after a year's enforced separation. The scene was a most affecting one and would prove highly effective on the stage, and would secure a lasting reputation for the actors if brought out in good style. In a few minutes they were once more joined together. The ceremony might properly have ended: What God has joined together let no woman put asunder.

AMUSEMENTS.

MISS COURSEN'S CONCERT.—Among the attractions at Miss Ellen Coursen's concert next Monday night will be the trio from Don Giovanni (by request) sung by Miss Ellen Coursen, Mrs. Edgar E. Coursen and Miss Rose Coursen. Miss Coursen, in deference to the expressed wish of many, has consented to appear for this number only in concert costume. It is said that the dressing of the ladies will be something elegant. The costumes of Miss Ellen Coursen are always described by the society papers in San Francisco and her taste is well known. We do not doubt that there will be a large demand on the box office this week for reserved seats.

THE OPERA SEASON.—By the advertisement in to-day's paper it will be seen that Signor De Vivo will give a rare treat of operatic music to the public of Portland. The company comprises the best ensemble of artists that have ever appeared here. Madame Marie Godini, who comes with high credentials from the eastern and Mexican press, is the principal prima donna soprano, Signora Zeppilla Villani, mezzo soprano contralto, Signor Villani, baritone, Signor Bologna, basso, and Signor Baldanza, the famous tenor, who has created a great sensation in San Francisco. It is said that no tenor since Wachtel has aroused audiences to so wild a pitch of enthusiasm as Baldanza. Miss Eno Wadsworth and Madame Bologna are the accompanists. The programme will be changed every night, and each performance will consist of six pieces of the best selections from the standard operas, and two operatic scenes in costume from Il Barbiere di Seville, Trovatore, Faust, Dinorah, and Crispino e la Comare. Signor De Vivo will also produce in its entirety Donizetti's most charming opera, Don Pasquale. The season will be limited to five nights only, commencing on Tuesday, June 17, at the New Market theater. Season tickets are $6. A duplicate subscription list will be left at Cornelius' drug store, and the original will be circulated by Mr. Kinross. Subscribers will have the advantage of one day in their selection of seats.

THE STANDARD.—Manager Cornelius desires to correct a false impression created by the publication in yesterday's OREGONIAN of an item from the San Francisco Chronicle concerning the Standard theater. The lease of that theater is in Cornelius' possession, and was simply rented by him through Stechan to Bobby Newcomb. The Standard is for rent to responsible parties until August next, when it will be closed two weeks for extensive repairs, after which time it will be opened with the strongest minstrel company ever brought to this coast, with Charley Reed in the cast. Wm. Emerson himself will take the stage of the Standard with the company in September, and will give San Francisco the treat of seeing him at his best. Billy will play a long engagement under Mr. Cornelius' management, and it is to be hoped that he will come to Portland before going east. The Standard is in good hands, backed by abundant capital and will yet make its mark as the home of minstrelsy on the coast.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT SALEM.

Fourth Day.

The annual meeting of the trustees was held in the university office Tuesday, June 10, beginning at 9 A. M. There was a good attendance, and a large amount of important business transacted. The reports of the treasurer, Hon. Charles B. Moores, and of the financial agent, Rev. F. P. Tower, showed that the business affairs of the university have been so conducted during the year as to insure increased prosperity and usefulness in its educational work.

The faculty remains the same as last year, and the work in the different departments is set forth in the report of the visiting committee, appointed by the annual conference of the M. E. church. The report is as follows, and was made to, and, on motion, adopted by the board of trustees:

To the Honorable Board of Trustees, Willamette University, Salem, Oregon:—The visiting committee beg leave to report:

1. Only two members of the committee appointed by the Oregon conference were present, viz: Revs. W. S. Harrington and W. G. Simpson; absentees, Revs. A. C. Fairchild and J. N. Denison of the Oregon conference, and James N. Wilbur of the Columbia river conference.

2. In view of the absence of the afore-named brethren, with the consent of the president and faculty, we invited Rev. F. S. Hoyt, D. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Rev. A. Eads, of the Columbia river conference, to assist us in the duties devolving upon us.

3. We attended public examinations as follows:

Monday—Latin and English grammar; general history and German; Greek and book-keeping; music and astronomy.

Tuesday—French and botany; geometry and practical arithmetic; English literature and normal mental arithmetic. These examinations were conducted by President VanScoy, Professors Arnold, Jory, Starr and Parvin, Misses Trigg, Eastham and Cunningham.

4. We note with gratification the thoroughness in the work of both teachers and students.

(2) Students have done excellent and honest work.

(3) The examinations were conducted with great fairness and all opportunity was given the committee to observe and test the work.

5. We are pleased and gratified with the work of the students of the Conservatory of Music, both oral and practical.

6. In the department of drawing and painting under the management of Miss Mary Bridges, we see much thoroughness and evident ability.

7. We cannot specify any department of the work calling for special mention. All, to us, was excellent, showing conclusively that our beloved Willamette University is pursuing her career with credit and honor and is moving on toward the high position to which we seek to exalt her.

8. Our visit to the university and our association with the faculty has been pleasant in every sense. We cannot refrain from heartily commending the university to the public for its moral and educational standing.

Finally we pray that the presence and spirit of God may abundantly rest upon the university and all its interests. W. S. HARRINGTON, Chairman.

WM. G. SIMPSON, Secretary.

The officers of the board remain the same as last year. The following persons were nominated as trustees for the class of 1884, and will doubtless be confirmed by the annual conference, viz: Messrs. G. W. Steves and John Kenworthy of Portland; Rev. W. S. Harrington, Salem; Mrs. John Kenworthy of Portland; and Miss M. Ella Whipple, M. D., of Vancouver, with one to be recommended by the alumni. On recommendation of the faculty the following named students were elected to graduating honors in the senior class of the college of liberal arts. In the scientific course Messrs. E. H. Belknap, W. C. Hawley and Miss M. Ella Whipple, M. D. In the Latin scientific course Mr. M. M. Waite. In the conservatory of music the following students were granted diplomas, viz: Misses Eva Cox, Amelia Savage, Pearl Scott, Lulu M. Smith and Mary C. Starr. Also the following students were elected to graduating honors in the third year class of the academy, viz: Albert W. Bowersox, Maggie B. Brown, Amy B. Cavanagh, Nellie S. Crosby, Sarah J. Evans, Sarah M. Grisendorfer, John O. Goltra, Wm. Herzler, Levi Mayes, Lawrence A. McNary, John Parsons, John Peebles, Jessie L. Potter, Andrew M. Reeves, Linnie M. Savage and J. Beuser Starr.

On recommendation of the faculty the following persons were elected for degrees, which will be conferred to-day, viz: Rev. Geo. W. Izer of Portland and Rev. W. S. Harrington of Salem, to the degree of D. D.; State Superintendent E. B. McElroy to the degree of Ph. D., and Rev. A. Eads of the Columbia river conference to the degree of A. M.

Special Announcement.

On next Sunday, June 15, an unusually fine programme will be given at the City View park, consisting of running and trotting races. There has been engaged a full brass band, which will furnish music for those who wish to dance. Two fast and commodious steamers have been chartered, which will leave the foot of Morrison street every half hour. The races which take place have created quite a stir the past few days, and will be worth seeing. Those who wish to spend a pleasant day should avail themselves of this excursion and get away from the city for a few hours' recreation. Pools will be sold Saturday night at the Cosmopolitan, corner First and Alder streets.

Summer Styles.

Ladies desiring something real stylish and handsome should call and see my elegant line of hats, summer styles. I have also received several cases French white chip hats, which I will sell much below the regular prices. My stock of eastern and French flowers and lovely pompons cannot be surpassed. Mrs. Hanover, 1[illegible] Third street.

Come to Stay.

Mr. B. Frieman, the well known and old-time pioneer in the coffee business, has returned after an absence of eleven months, and opened an elegant place on Oak street, between Front and First. He is, as usual, ready to serve the public with the best coffee in the city. Mr. Frieman says he has come to stay, and hopes the public will show their good feeling toward him as in former years and patronize him. Everything is new and clean. The ladies' department is unsurpassed. Call and see him at once.

The Barlow Road.

F. O. McCown, Esq., President of the Mt. Hood and Barlow Road Co., informs us that the above road is open for travel of all kinds. The snow has disappeared and teams have already passed both ways, and report the road in good condition. The company certainly deserves credit for the energy it has displayed in opening this popular thoroughfare to travel so early in the season.

THE KING OF CLAMS.

Parties who desired information concerning the monstrous clams from Puget sound, noticed in these columns a few days since, will read with interest the following carefully prepared and exhaustive article. The directions for cooking will be particularly acceptable to ladies, while the description of an animal, which keeps its foot inside its body and has its liver inside of its foot, must be interesting to all.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON,
SEATTLE, June 10, 1884.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Responding to THE OREGONIAN's suggestion of Thursday morning, I hereby send some remarks concerning the large Puget sound clam there mentioned.

First as to the greatest size. A shell in my collection measures 4x8 inches and I think I have seen larger ones, but the animal when first found will measure six inches in diameter through the body and four feet in length, three feet of this being "neck," which as soon as disturbed they can suddenly shorten to not more than eight inches. The largest that I have seen would weigh three pounds when first taken. I have heard statements of greater weight and dimensions, but the same is true of trout and rats. However, they are large enough, and, like the Irishman's potatoes, "ten wud fill a bushel, and five wud make a man a dacint male."

Second—As to habitat, they are found on the Pacific coast, from Kamtschatka to San Pedro, situated in deep mud beyond the littoral zone, or low tide mark, and are only exposed at the very lowest tides. Then it is that the farmer (clam digging has been decided to be agriculture) rushes down to a "bed," or colony, and begins the assault, soldier-like, by digging a trench from three to four feet deep, for they are burrowed to this depth, and begins to undermine the animals, that stand often so thick that there is scarcely room for more, with their long "necks" reaching to the surface. They are found usually in small sections of but a few rods square, that happen to be suited to their habits, that is, sufficiently exposed by the tide to be available.

Third—As to the habits, and at the risk of being tiresome to those who already know, and my experience teaches me that those are few, I would like to say something of the physiology of this animal, which will also apply to all shell fish that have "necks." As has been stated, these necks reach the surface and are always in communication with the water, by means of which they obtain nutriment as follows: This "neck," or siphon, which is its name, is composed of thick muscular walls that inclose two separate tubes, placed side by side, through which a current of water is always passing, down one side and up the other. The one toward the edges of the shell is the in current, and the one toward the back, or hinge, is out. As the water passes down it enters a large chamber or cavity called the pedal chamber, because it contains the foot. Here also are situated the gills, two thin striped bodies on each side of the foot, through which the water passes freely, oxygenizing the blood as in other animals. In the same chamber is situated the mouth, surrounded by two and sometimes four palpi or feelers, that sweep the water for material for food and direct it into the mouth. This food consists of sediment that is sweeping along the bottom, and out of it they digest such organic matter as it may contain, which is accomplished by means of a short gullet, small stomach, enormous liver and extremely long and tortuous intestine passing through the heart and emptying into the cloaca just at the beginning of the upward current of water, the refuse matter being thus carried up and swept away by the tide.

Fourth—As to its name. It has several common names that are also shared by other species, among which is "big clam," "long neck clam," "horse neck clam," "deep clam," the last being the only one that might with propriety be applied to this species. The Indians call it guay duc (goo-a-duck, accent on first), which sounds like an Indian's attempt at "gray duck," and the form of the animal will always suggest the inference. To the conchologist, among whom it is quite rare, it is known as glycimeris generosa, so named by Gould, who was with the U. S. exploring expedition. The first name is from the two Greek words that mean sweet and bitter, and the last is Latin and means excellent, all three names undoubtedly referring to gastronomic qualities, for, when properly prepared, it is, to my taste, superior to any of the clam family, the famous "razor" not excepted.

Having finished that last sentence, I tip back in my chair with that feeling of complacency that always comes to a man that has said a good thing of a friend, when it occurs to me that a funeral oration is never complete without a word of comfort to the mourners, so I proceed to write.

Fifth—As to preparing and cooking. First place it in a shallow dish of water and with a sharp knife remove all fragments of shell, scraping close to the shell so not to waste it; wash carefully, taking out all sand, place on a board, cut off the neck close to the body, and with the fingers alone carefully remove the thick outer skin to within an inch of the end, sever, then cut it into thin slices crosswise. Next take out the "foot," which is the roundish, smooth body in the large cavity, and split it open; here will be found a large green mass which is the liver. Remove this carefully, as it is very bitter. Do not waste the white mass in which it is embedded, as it is very choice. Now by carefully pressing the contents of the intestines are removed, and all is to be well washed in cold water, cut into small bits and placed in a spider and covered with water, and no seasoning. Let it stew until the water evaporates, then put on butter and brown, and—well, "Go see what I have seen, go feel what I have felt."

O. B. JOHNSON.

MRS. FOSTER OF IOWA.

Oregon is soon to be favored with one of the most gifted speakers of the day, Mrs. J. Ellen Foster of Iowa. Those who miss hearing her will miss hearing the woman who, as an orator, stands unequaled throughout the length and breadth of our land. The following are only three out of the multitude of like testimonials that have reached us:

Louisville Post: Mrs. Judith Ellen Foster, who lectured at Masonic Temple and at several of the churches yesterday, is the most gifted woman orator ever heard in Louisville. She is not only a clear and logical speaker, but her wit is positively brilliant.

Sioux City Union: The lecture brought out Mrs. Foster's wonderful powers and knowledge. It was a mighty subject in a master hand. Those who heard will never forget the thrusts, the sarcasms, the rebukes, the logics, and truths of that lecture. The church was filled to its utmost; gallery, aisles, vestibule, altar, not a spot but what was occupied. The speech was grand, electrical and convincing.

Dayton (Ohio) Daily Journal: At the conclusion of her address Mrs. Foster was enthusiastically applauded, and received many congratulations upon her effective arguments. * * Mrs. Foster is a lady of rare attainments and decided abilities, and her ideas are couched in neat, forcible language. She speaks entirely extempore, and does so with an ease which harmonizes with a facile and effective expression. She employs in her language incisive irony and satire which blend as a mosaic with more vehement declamatory flights, and carries the audience with her with an unflagging interest.

IN AND ABOUT ASTORIA.

A noteworthy feature in the increase of trade in Astoria is the presence in its waters of a perfect fleet of small steamers ranging in carrying capacity from ten to fifty tons, which ply to and from the numerous settlements and logging camps within the limit of a day's trip to and from the city, and which procure from it the supplies necessary for the consumption of man and beast. Skipanon, Knappton, Gray's river, Skamokawa, John Day's, Young's, Lewis and Clark's, and Klaskanine rivers, each have their little steamers keeping up generally daily communication with Astoria, and to these has recently been added the steam yacht Gold Dust, which this week commenced regular trips, on alternate days, from Astoria to Warrenton. Besides these there are a half score of others engaged as tenders to the canneries which prefer this to procure the results of the nightly toil of their fishermen rather than have them lose time by sailing or rowing their boats up from the mouth of the river, where the most salmon are caught. This practice will commend itself to those not conversant with the business when it is understood that the catch to the boat varies very materially every night, those lucky enough to strike a school may get away on a tide with a hundred, or more salmon, while others with their nets spread only a half mile distant on either side may possibly toil all night and catch nothing. The run has been good so far this month, salmon being both plentiful and large.

It is a lamentable fact that the aggregate of fatal disasters to these hardy sons of toil has probably been greater already this season than in any previous year, not excepting the memorable season of 1880, when in one night in the month of May, during a succession of sudden squalls, twenty-two fishermen found a watery grave. No hurricane, or severe storm even, has visited the mouth of the Columbia this season, and the increased fatalities can only be reasonably accounted for by the supposition that most of the sad accidents have resulted from the inexperience of many of the victims. Owing to the fact that no fishing of any consequence was done in the month of April, and the additional fact that owing to the low price of salmon already in the market and the difficulty of procuring advances, the cannerymen had no intention of running more than one-third of their boats this season, scores of our most experienced fishermen, who have other means of making an honest livelihood, retired altogether from the field. In consequence of the influx of unskilled labor since the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad (of which Astoria has received its due proportion), there was no lack of men hungry to fill their places. Probably no canneryman entrusted to one of these green hands the management of a boat and net, but scores of them were engaged by the captains of the boats as boat pullers, and, in fishing off the bar, in taking up the net at the turn of the tide, the water may be as smooth as a mill pond one minute, but before the occupants are aware of it the flood tide comes rushing in, meets the ebb, the boat is in the shoals out of the channel, and before they know it a combing breaker fills the boat, turns it bottom up, and the relentless breakers have no pity on the unfortunate fisherman. It is at the critical moment of realizing the turn of the tide that the combined skill and experience in managing a boat, of both captain and boat puller, is required. This wanting in either of them perils the life of both, for no one man can avert the catastrophe under such circumstances. Sometimes, but rarely, they are able to cling to the boat until picked up by some more fortunate brother fisherman. To their credit be it said, no matter how dangerous the attempt, they never refuse to make it if there is any living show that there is a greater probability of saving their comrade's life than of losing their own. A proof of their fraternal regard for each other was given your correspondent a week or two ago. A casualty, such as I have faintly pictured, occurred off Sand island, near the wreck of the Great Republic. The occupants of the capsized fishing boat held with a death grip to the center board as sea after sea washed over them. The current carried the boat nearer and nearer toward another boat hastening to the rescue, but before that help arrived, a combing breaker burst over them breaking their hold and tossing the boat over and over like a cork. One of the men rose to the surface near enough to the succoring boat to be snatched all unconscious from a watery grave. It took several minutes of faithful effort on the part of his rescuers to restore the lingering spark of life. As he opened his eyes he gazed around and the first words he uttered as he realized the position was, "Where is my pard?" "And," said my informant, who was himself one of the rescuers, "without a word of thanks or thought of joy about his own life being saved, when we told him his partner was drowned he cried like a child for over an hour."

After many unavoidable delays, mainly owing to the destruction of several miles of water pipe by the extensive fire in Astoria last July, the citizens of that place are favored with an unlimited supply of pure fresh water. The Columbia water works, of which D. P. Thompson is president, commenced furnishing water to the city yesterday. The head waters of the supply are located at Bend creek, a pure mountain stream, and Astorians are to be congratulated that they are now in the enjoyment of one of life's greatest blessings as well as necessities.

A venturesome party of excursionists from the interior hired a Whitehall boat at Astoria on Monday afternoon last, crowding into it about as many as they might have done with impunity on the placid Willamette, and attempted to cross the lordly Columbia to Knappton. A fairly stiff nor'wester was blowing and the white caps of the waves looked very pretty to the eye, but paid no respect to the boat or its occupants. The party became alarmed as the water poured in faster than it could be baled out. Soon the boat swamped and the party, among whom were two ladies, took a dip bath. Fortunately a fishing boat, belonging to the Anglo-American Packing Company, and well manned, was close at hand and took the whole party on board.

The President's Son Responsible for one Human Life.

New York Telegram, May 26.

A Washington special says, regarding the death yesterday morning at Lockport, N. Y., of the daughter of ex-congressman Dick Crowley, that a year ago she was said to be engaged to Allan Arthur, the president's son, who broke the engagement without any apparent reason. The lady never recovered from the mortification. Consumption set in, and she steadily declined. The special continues: This was the real cause of Crowley's quarrel with the president and his resignation as special counsel in the South Carolina election cases. The Crowleys were very intimate at the White House. The result was to bring Allan Arthur and Miss Crowley much together. For a time Allan Arthur singled out Miss Crowley as the special object of his attentions, and they became engaged. No one foresaw any obstacle to the match. Suddenly the engagement was broken without a word of warning. It was at that time that Crowley had his memorable break with Arthur, leaving the White House in a towering rage, vowing that he would never speak to the president again. Various reasons were given at that time, but the real one was the peremptory breaking of the engagement between Allan Arthur and Miss Crowley. It was understood by those in the secret that the president ordered the breaking off of the engagement upon the plea that his son was too young; that he should not consider marriage until he had finished his college career. This was not considered a good excuse, because the president encouraged the intimacy. After Crowley left the White house he refused any explanation for his break. In his pride he had even denied any rupture, but Mrs. Crowley has been unsparing in denunciation of Arthur. She said that if her daughter died she should hold the Arthur family responsible. Another special from Washington says that Dorsey has been talking about certain revelations that he could make, and among others that the break between Crowley and the president was due to Crowley's anger at Arthur's conduct toward a certain married woman.

John Brown's Bible.

Cor. N. Y. Tribune.

John Brown's bible is perhaps the most valuable book in this country outside of a historical society library or a private collector's. It belongs to the family of Mr. Blessing, who was a baker in Charlestown, and had the preparation of the meals of Brown's men. It is such a bible as you see at hotels and in railroad carriages, probably worth $1, and with an imitation calf binding. Inside the cover and on the opposite fly leaf are about a dozen lines of Brown's handwriting. He refers to the profit in reading the scriptures, thanks his friend, and says the passages marked where the leaves are turned down are but a few out of both testaments which condemn oppression and the holding of people in bondage. Then in ink all these pages are marked, and there may be fifty pages of them. This bible, at once the motive and the excuse of Brown, lifts his cause out of low vulgarity and gives it, at least in his estimation, the sanctity of heaven. Mr. Blessing's son and daughter showed the book, and that old man seems to have left in that family an impression almost as if a saint had known them. Five hundred dollars were once offered for the bible, but I think the offerer did not come forward again. Other offers have been small; it is often solicited to be shown at fairs, etc., but they keep it in the dwelling. I suppose it could not be bought for $500 or something more than that, because the family, while not poor, is not rich. Mr. Lewis Washington, who was a comparatively rich man, sold to the state of New York the sword John Brown wore, and other relics of John Brown, for $20,000. Indeed, old Brown conferred knighthood even on his prisoners, and the people in Charlestown say that it was the eminence Lewis Washington received for having been in the engine house with John Brown which obtained him his second wife, who was a well-to-do lady, and her sister is said to have been the wife of Lewis McLane, president of the Nevada bank.

WHEAT—Advices from the other side report quiet but steady markets at all points and for all descriptions. Chicago loses over a cent to-day. San Francisco is quiet, with very little doing. Receipts here have dwindled to almost nothing, and there is little to come forward for shipment. The market is wholly nominal, and cannot be quoted with any degree of exactness. The Jorsalfarer has completed a cargo for Cork.

OATS—Receipts for local account are small, with some selling being done within the range of last quotations.

MILLSTUFF—Additional stocks, principally of ground barley, were received by the Columbia. Bran shipped hence to California brought $15 50 on wharf. Jobbing values are steady for millstuff, but rather weak for barley.

POULTRY—Arrivals are on the increase and sales are less readily made. Old chickens sell at $5 50@6 50, and young at $3 50. Other poultry is in small request.

EGGS—Receipts quite large and the 22½c quotation promises to soon be broken.

The Riot Convention.

Detroit Post and Tribune.

It was in 1864 that the convention was held in Chicago, which filled the air with rumors of war, riots, conflagrations and conspiracies. It was during the sessions of that convention that the plot was laid to free the rebel prisoners at Camp Douglas and on Johnson's island. There were schemes abroad for burning cities in the north. The diabolical purposes were known to many of the leaders of the convention, and the secret meetings by night were reckoned of quite as much importance as the open sessions by day. The convention was democratic, however, and not republican.

A FAMOUS DUEL.

The Encounter between the Poet Moore and the Essayist Jeffrey.

That was a memorable encounter between the poet Tom Moore and the critic, essayist and jurist Francis Jeffrey. Both of them were of keen and polished wit; both warm-hearted, generous, impulsive, and more or less capricious. In 1806 Jeffrey attacked Moore's "Odes and Epistles" in the Edinburgh Review, denouncing them on account of their immorality. This was too much for the sensitive poet. He felt that blood alone could wash away the stain of that abominable criticism. Accordingly he challenged the traducer to mortal combat.

Jeffrey, though small of stature, was great in courage, and he straightway accepted the challenge and named pistols as the weapons. Seconds were selected and preliminaries arranged, when Moore bethought him that it would be necessary that he should provide himself with pistols; and further, as the challenging party, it would be proper for him to furnish weapons for both.

Now; deadly weapons of any kind Moore had never been partial to, and pistols he had never owned—at any rate, proper dueling pistols; but he knew that his dear friend, Sir William Robert Spencer, owned beautiful pistols, and to him he applied, being obliged, of course, to tell him what he wanted them for. Sir William cheerfully lent his pistols, and then as soon as the messenger was gone from his sight he hurried away to the Bow street office and engaged two officers of his acquaintance to hold themselves in readiness to prevent the two little peppery men from risking mortal damage to one another.

The duel was to be fought at Chalk farm early in the morning. Doctor Joseph Hume was Moore's second, while Francis Horner, of the Edinburgh Review, was second for Jeffrey; but others were on the ground, though not in sight, for both men had many friends, who were deeply anxious. And there, on that ground chosen for deadly strife, Thomas Moore and Francis Jeffrey met, face to face, for the first time. They did not offer to shake hands, but Jeffrey—he and his antagonist were now standing together, the others of the party being engaged in the solemn duty of loading the pistols—said:

"What a beautiful morning it is!"

To this Moore answered "Yes;" and then added, with a smile, "A morning made for better purposes."

Jeffrey's response to this was a sigh. They passed each other, and turned; and when they met again Moore related to his antagonist a comical story about an Irish barrister, Billy Egan, who had gone out on a bright morning, as they were out then, for the purpose of fighting a duel. Jeffrey was still smiling at this story when the seconds came out from the adjacent thicket and announced, "All ready."

The men were placed twelve paces apart, and the pistols given into their hands.

"Now," said Hume, "remember the word. Raise your pistols at the word 'Ready!' Then one—two—and at three you will fire."

"Ready!" Nobody can say where Moore's heart was, but his pistol was raised, and so was Jeffrey's. They waited for the fatal signal.

That signal, however, was not given. Instead thereof, two Bow-street officers emerged from the thicket, one of whom advanced to Jeffrey and struck his pistol down with his staff, while his companion went up and collared Moore.

The belligerents were marched off to their respective carriages and conveyed to Bow street, where, as no blood had been spilled, they were let off lightly. And from that office Tom Moore and Francis Jeffrey went forth friends; and their friendship grew and strengthened while they lived.

The Oregon Railroad System.

San Francisco Chronicle.

A struggle has been inaugurated between the Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific for possession of the properties, by lease or otherwise, of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company. This last named company is a corporation organized upon the laws of the Oregon for railway and water navigation. It holds the outlets from the mouth of Snake river by way of the Columbia river route, and it is manifestly to the interest of that great country that the right to connect with it should be kept open alike to all the transcontinental roads that are or are to be constructed. But it is the interest of the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific to secure this property each to itself in some way or other, even at a very high bid for it; for in that case either of the two great corporations would hold a monopoly of outlet from the mouth of Snake river to the mouth of the Columbia, and might exclude all other and all others. W. W. Chapman of Portland, in a recent letter to a paper of that city, explains the situation very clearly, and why it is that both the Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific could afford to offer very high rates for a lease of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's properties and rights on the Columbia. He says: "the real motive of these high bids is that either the Northern Pacific or Union Pacific (Short Line via Baker City), by means of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's road and river interests, may hold the monopoly of seventy or eighty miles of the pass of the Columbia river through the Cascade mountains. The south is the commercial side of the Columbia river. The Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's road occupies the ground and it is impossible to build another road there. It has the portage roads on the Columbia and no other company can compete with its steamers." Neither the Union Pacific (Short Line) nor the Northern Pacific can reach Portland and tide water without a connection with the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's road east of this Columbia river pass. And naturally, both of them covet possession of this property, for it would give either of them a monopoly. The Northern Pacific is not so absolutely at the mercy of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company as the Union Pacific, for it may form a connection by way of Tacoma and Puget sound, which would be against the interests of Portland and Astoria. But evidently it is of the highest importance to Portland, and in fact to all of Oregon, that neither of the two transcontinental companies shall secure a monopoly of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's route through the river pass, and so on to tide water. This river route from eastern Oregon down the Columbia to Kalama, and thence north to Puget sound, is considerably longer than the contemplated route from the mouth of the Snake river through the Tacoma pass, but it is the opinion of able railway engineers that owing to the higher grade of the Tacoma route, the longer one must always be the cheaper for freight traffic, on which opinion Portland measurably rests her confidence in the future.

Gen. Lee Declines to Sell His Fame.

General Lee, at the close of the war, received innumerable offers to engage in commercial enterprises. Insurance companies, railroads, and many large corporations at the south were anxious to pay him any salary he might demand solely for the use of his name, without any labor on his part, or the incurring of any responsibility whatever. A committee of Englishmen, with the duke of Sutherland and Mr. Beresford Hope at the head, offered him in fee a splendid estate in one of the midland counties in England, coupled with a guarantee of an income of £5000 a year as long as he lived. He gratefully declined all of these offers and accepted the presidency of Washington and Lee university at a salary of $3000. Here he earned his living as the hardest worker in a hard working faculty in training the youth of the country up to the very hour of the paralytic stroke which immediately preceded his death.

General Lee left three sons. They, too, received many offers of a similar kind, and likewise refused them. Two of these sons are now prosperous planters in Virginia. The third succeeded his father in the presidency of Washington and Lee university, and has filled the position with credit for the last fifteen years.

The true American spirit shines in General Lee's example, the spirit which prompted Washington and his generals when they retired from the public service enriched only with the recollections of their great achievements, and scorning to make merchandise of their fame.

Durham is historic. It was neutral ground during the armistice between Sherman and Johnson. Soldiers of both armies filled their pouches with the tobacco stored there, and, after the surrender, marched home. Soon orders came from East, West, North and South, for "more of that elegant tobacco." Then, ten men ran an unknown factory. Now it employs 800 men, uses the pink and pick of the Golden Belt, and the Durham Bull is the trade-mark of the best tobacco in the world. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco has the largest sale of any smoking tobacco in the world. Why? Simply because it is the best. All dealers have it. Trade-mark of the Bull.

If he'd gone for a package of Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco, as his was old, he wouldn't have been cornered by the bull.

SPRING

Is the season in which bad or poisoned blood is most apt to show itself. Nature, at this juncture, needs something to assist it in throwing off the impurities which have collected by the sluggish circulation of the blood during the cold winter months. Swift's Specific is nature's great helper, as it is a purely vegetable alterative and tonic.

Rev. L. B. Payne, Macon, Ga., writes: "We have been using Swift's Specific at the orphans' home as a remedy for blood complaints, and as a general health tonic, and have had remarkable results from its use on the children and employes of the institution. It is such an excellent tonic, and keeps the blood so pure that the system is less liable to disease. It has cured some of our children of Scrofula."

W. H. Gilbert, druggist, Albany, Ga., writes: "We are selling large quantities of Swift's Specific for a spring alterative and general health tonic, and with the best results. It is now largely used as a preventive and cure for Malaria. There are many remarkable evidences of its merit in this section."

The Great Drug House of Chicago.

We do not hesitate to say that for a year past we have sold more of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) than all other Blood Purifiers combined, and with astonishing results. One gentleman who used a half dozen bottles says it did him more good than treatment which cost him $1000. An other who had a bad case of Scrofula has been cured entirely and permanently by its use.

VAN SHAACK, STEVENSON & CO.

One gentleman who had been confined to his bed six weeks with Mercurial Rheumatism has been cured entirely, and speaks in the highest praise of S. S. S.
